

MEET YOUR OPTOMETRIST

DAWN S. CHIVERS, OD

Doctor of Optometry: With Distinction, Southern California College of Optometry, Fullerton, California

Bachelor of Science: Cum Laude, Biology, Siena College, Loudonville, New York

Member: American Optometric Association, President of Eastern Society of New York State Optometric Association

Continuing Education: Dr. Chivers exceeds the required amount of continuing education each year.

“The patients of this practice come from a collection of truly wonderful families that I have been very fortunate to treat over the years. I strive to give those families the best possible health care.

One of the ways I enjoy providing the highest level of care is by always staying on the cutting edge of technology for the optometric field. Our patients will see this in every aspect of our practice, from innovative new contact lens designs, to ocular disease early detection and treatment.”

“When someone comes to me with vision and health problems, solving those problems can be like solving a puzzle and doing so can be both stimulating and tremendously rewarding. It is what makes each day a challenge.”

“As a family eye doctor, there is nothing better than seeing a patient grow and getting to know his or her family. Finding out what a patient spends her time doing helps clarify their vision demands. I spend the time it takes to do so and find that it directly translates to better care.”

“At the end of the process, I love watching patients walk out the door or seeing them in the community wearing a fabulous pair of frames or enjoying their new contacts. Picking out the best selection of frames each year for the office is an outlet for me that I always look forward to and enjoy.”

Dr. Chivers is married and has two children. In her spare time, she enjoys cooking, reading, gardening and music. An active member of her community, she volunteers her services and conducts vision screening at the YMCA and other local organizations. She is also one of the first providers in the region to participate in the InfantSEE program which offers free vision screenings to babies. She was elected President of the New York State Optometric Association’s Eastern Society in 2008.
